AUTOBIOGRAPHY. THOMAS JEFFERSON. of. VIRGINIA. JANUARY 6, 1821. At the age of 77, I begin to make some memoranda, and state some recollections of dates and facts concerning myself, for my own more ready reference, and for the information of my family. The tradition in my father's family was, that their ancestor came to this country from Wales, and from near the mountain of Snowdon, the highest in Great Britain.

Thomas Jefferson's autobiography reminded me of Einstein's Autobiographical Notes in many respects. Neither book is a conventional autobiography, but rather a concise summary of the respective authors' life's work, with personal facts and figures given only secondary importance (particularly in the case of Einstein's book.)
